Hi,

here you have a frontend developer with experience from being a tour leader, 5-star hotel sales supervising and almost ten years from event management plus a huge fan of CrossFit.

I know what it takes to keep a high standard, follow guidelines, project planning, work in teams, how to listen and how to help out, customer care and deliver top of the line products. And I would be so proud to join you and your company as a junior developer.

A couple of weeks ago I had an inspiring interview with Lydia Price, recruiter at Paradox, and we talked about my connection with games and why I would fit at Paradox. I told her that one of the reasons why I truly love the world of games, is that during the three years we lived in Miami, my teenagers managed to stay in contact with their friends here at home even if they had the whole world separating them, thanks to the games. The social engagement the games provide is both helping a relation to stay steady, but also develops the players in the same time. So for me being a part of that world, knowing how fun all people have playing together - even me 😊 - would be a dream.

During our time in Miami I both learned to love coding, as I joined a remote course at the Swedish University of Linné. And I found out that my other passion in life was CrossFit, in which I also took a coaching degree.

Upon returning to Sweden I followed my dreams and joined the Frontend Developer studies with Technigo which was an intensive program of 24 weeks where we from day one worked as within a company. With weekly projects covering everything from the basics of programming to structuring web projects in the latest technologies, such as React, JavaScript and Node.js, backend API's, REST-ful Routes and the understanding of the database build up. Mob-programming and pair-programming was also a significant part of the education and working with Agile methodology, which I also see you do at Paradox, with weekly sprints planning, check-ins, demos and retrospectives.

On my free time my husband, our two teenagers and the little puppy, are my number one priority. We love to travel when the times aren't like they are for the moment - but hoping to be able to do so in the future off course. Meantime and a normal Friday eve we hang out having dinner and a movie. And off course I hit the box for some fun and challenging CrossFit as often as I can.

Well this was a little about me - I can't wait to hear from you as I truly feel the match would be perfect. Here I am ready to give it all, with grit and heart.

Stay safe and hope to hear from you soon!
